When I run the app on my computer with an external assets that are being stored in the "Assets" folder, everything runs smoothly. However, when I publish the app to a remote server and there is no build and deploy build of the app, the app will throw an error in the external assets. It seems that the ppi of the file is not updated when the app is not built. Is there a way to force the ppi of the file to be updated or the fact that my app is not built? A: As Alex's comment pointed out, the problem is resolved after I move the project from the Assets folder to the root of the solution with all the other solutions.
